Today's Prayer

Heavenly Father, Thank you for your word and the comfort it brings to so many people. I let myself worry about life and neglect to trust your plan. As John 14:1 reminds me, I have no need to worry because of my faith in you. Thank you for taking care of me and knowing what's best for me.

In Jesus' Name, Amen

John 14:1

In Jesus farewell to his disciples, his consoling words to them and to us are beautiful: "Do not let your hearts be troubled. You believe in God; believe also in Me." (John 14:1)

He had already told them of the trouble that was to come, his crucifixion and death. He tells them about how they would betray him. Yet, he did not leave them without hope, which is why you see this passage in John 14. In the face of trouble and what looked to be the end—it was the means to a new beginning for his kingdom and all of mankind.

Believe in God—and Me: The trouble in our hearts and minds doesn't just trouble us, it troubles our Mighty God in Heaven too. He knew what was about to happen was dark. Yet, behind it all, was the hand of God already at work. His dying act of obedience to his Heavenly Father was the very thing that would set our hearts free from all trouble.

The Anchor of Peace: Jesus reminds us, peace is keeping our eyes on Him in the middle of all circumstances. If we believe the Bible is the revealed Word of God given to use to show us how to keep our eyes on Christ, then we should not only read it often, but hide His Word in our hearts. He invites us to pray and pray often. One of the healthiest ways to ease our troubled hearts is through talking to God. When we pray to God, it is like talking to your best friend. He hears every word you say, and He wants you to hear what He has to say to you too.

As we acknowledge His presence, His promises and His Word, He trades our troubled hearts for peace.

Let not your heart be troubled.

John 14:1
